Denise Williams is one of the youngest African Americans in the United States to serve as Founder/CEO of a real estate brokerage firm. In this book, she peels back the curtain and shares some of the most sought-after success secrets in the business, allowing an inside look at what it took for her to journey from small-town poverty to scaling repeatable profits in one of the nation's most competitive markets. As the Owner and Qualifying Broker of Williams and Co. International Realty, Denise recalls her early life as the middle child in a household of eight. Her family struggled to make ends meet, but at 11 years old Denise decided that she would one day control her own financial destiny, despite whatever odds she may face in the uncharted territory ahead. This once small-town star went on to attain a BA in Finance from Valdosta State University. She then took it a step further and obtained a Dual MBA in International Business and Supply Chain/Logistics Management, while mothering a young son and closing real estate deals between classes. Denise sold millions of dollars of estate as an agent, but for her, sales alone were not enough. She acquired her broker's license and went on to manage a start-up real estate firm, which under her leadership grew to 75+ agents in its first year. Denise has personally trained 125+ agents and has coordinated agent services at one of the largest real estate firms in the world. Now, as the head instructor at CEOwner Academy, she has mapped out a proven blueprint to show newly licensed Brokers and experienced Agents who desire to start their own teams how to dominate their market(s) and build Breakout Brokerages. Her system can be used throughout the country, and she is quickly becoming the go-to expert for training and development in the real estate industry. If you are like most producers, selling becomes so much easier when you are talking to these types of prospects. Unfortunately, far too often, producers are spending their time begging for appointments with prospects that are not qualified and have no motivation to take action. These meetings lead to frustration for both the producer and the so-called prospect. In this book, Chris Carlson & Mike Cogdall will reveal how to create an insurance practice that will result in all of your prospects being predisposed to wanting to buy from you. By establishing yourself as the Disability Insurance Specialist for other organizations and producers, you can create the most profitable practice in the Financial Services Industry.

Scientists have a choice concerning what role they should play in political debates and policy formation, particularly in terms of how they present their research. This book is about understanding this choice, what considerations are important to think about when deciding, and the consequences of such choices for the individual scientist and the broader scientific enterprise. Rather than prescribing what course of action each scientist ought to take, the book aims to identify a range of options for individual scientists to consider in making their own judgments about how they would like to position themselves in relation to policy and politics. Using examples from a range of scientific controversies and thought-provoking analogies from other walks of life, The Honest Broker challenges us all - scientists, politicians and citizens - to think carefully about how best science can contribute to policy-making and a healthy democracy.

Real estate has long been a relationship business basically a baby boomer model and due to significant changes in the consumer, the industry will no longer be able to thrive and prosper on this basis alone. The consumer is mistrustful and skeptical and the relationship will not stand alone as a way to secure business going forward it will be based on a combination of relationships and verifiable skills with the emphasis on skills. Compound this with the worst downturn since the great depression, a seemingly jobless recovery and tight lending standards we are the midst of great challenges for the future of our businesses. In all of this, there is great opportunity for real estate companies. The opportunity exists for companies to move away from an agent centered universe to a consumer centered one and to be of service to the consumer in ways the consumer wants and needs and is willing to pay for. Bottom line we have to get better at what we do. It is all here the way back to profit. Roll up your sleeves, be willing to relearn things you thought you already knew, change real estate service delivery as you know it and prosper!
